

FROM THE ART OF BEING IN THE FRAME · IRMA LION

FROM BEING SEEN TO BEING PAID.

Lessons from Irma Lion's book on turning the brand and audience you've built into income.

ATTENTION IS NOT INCOME.

You've done the work of being seen. A brand people recognize. An audience that listens. Maybe a few people already asking how to work with you.

Most people stop here. They keep posting, keep growing, and wait for the money to follow. It rarely does.

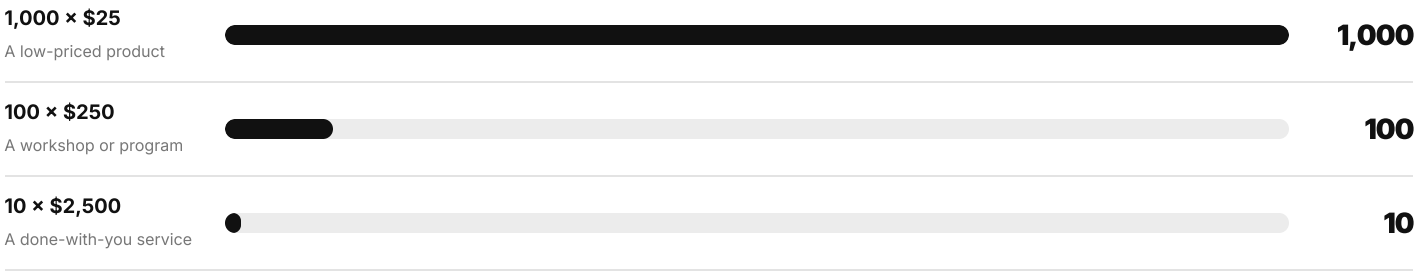

Irma lived this. She was trusted and recognized, and still, for most of her career, the income wasn't consistent. In her upcoming book, The Art of Being in the Frame, she names the turn.

FROM THE BOOK
IRMA LION · CHAPTER 06

I don't want to tell you that money doesn't matter. It does. … So learn how to price yourself. Learn how to sell. Learn how to build an audience. Learn how to create opportunities.

Private Preview 01 was about being seen. This one is about what comes next: turning what you've built into money, on purpose. The fastest way is not selling something small to everyone. It's offering something deeper to the few who are already asking.

THREE WAYS TO $25,000

Buyers needed for the same revenue. The first needs a crowd. The third needs ten people, and most people with a real following already have ten in their messages.

FROM THE HOUSE

Between us we have managed and closed more than $100M in sales and trained more than 3,000 salespeople. The pattern never changes: people buy from someone they trust, when the next step is obvious. Followers are rented from the platform. Clients are a relationship you own.

Niko, Irma & Christian · ID House

OUR RULE

Serve deeper, not wider.

Raise the level of service before you chase more followers.

WHAT IT IS NOT

Not a launch.

No funnel to build first, no countdown timers, no hard sell.

TIME IT TAKES

Thirty days.

From your first listening session to your first paid client.

WHO IS ALREADY ASKING?

"Service begins by noticing," Irma writes. "What do they ask you repeatedly?" Read your last thirty days of comments and DMs. Pick the type most of them sound like. Steps marked with your letter change slightly for you.

(W) Watchers

Sounds like: views and likes, very few comments. People enjoy you, quietly.

Needs: a reason to raise a hand. A free resource they ask for with one word, before any offer.

(F) Fans

Sounds like: "obsessed," "needed this," saves and Story replies. Warm and loyal, rarely asking for more.

Needs: an invitation. Show them that working with you is possible, and what it looks like.

(A) Askers

Sounds like: "how do you...," "what would you do if...," "do you have a course?"

Needs: an offer, this month. They are telling you what to sell.

(C) Clients in waiting

Sounds like: "do you take clients?" "what do you charge?"

Needs: a price, a call link, and the confidence to say both out loud.

COUNT YOUR DEMAND

In the last thirty days, how many people asked something you'd happily be paid to answer? Count DMs, comments and Story replies. Five or more: an offer is already waiting for you. Under five: start with the W notes and come back in two weeks.

HOW THIS PREVIEW WORKS

Lesson 1 · Your gift meets a need	Package what you already have into one offer. Chapter 08.
Lesson 2 · Price the value	What to charge, and why it holds. Chapter 06.
Lesson 3 · Move through resistance	Five moves from a post to a payment. Chapters 10 and 11.
Then	A thirty-day plan and a weekly tracker.

SELL WHAT THEY'RE ALREADY ASKING FOR.

FROM THE BOOK
IRMA LION · CHAPTER 08

Visibility asks: How can I be seen? Service asks: What can become possible because I was willing to be seen?

Six steps. Three core. You don't need a new idea. Your audience has been writing your offer in the comments. This lesson turns it into something they can buy.

Listen
STEP 01

Copy thirty days of questions, word for word. CORE

DMs, comments, Story replies. Paste them into one note and group the repeats. Their exact words become your offer's name and your sales copy.

W post a question sticker first: "What's the one thing you're stuck on with ___?"

Transformation
STEP 02

Name the change, not the service. CORE

"A title tells people what you do. Transformation tells them why it matters." Not "coaching" or "consulting." One person, one result, a set time. Write it as Before, they feel... After, they can... Promise the possibility you can open, never an outcome you can't control.

Format
STEP 03

Start with a service, not a product.

Done with you or done for you. You're paid well from the first sale, you learn what really works, and you collect the results you'll sell everything else with. The course comes later.

Edges
STEP 04

Draw the boundary before you sell it.

Irma learned that service without limits becomes self-abandonment. Her test: "Can I remain whole while offering it?" Give the offer a name, a length, what's included and what isn't. Edges make it feel real, and they protect the quality of your work.

Pre-sell
STEP 05

Sell it before you build it. CORE

Message the five to ten people who asked. Describe the offer in a few lines and ask if they want in. Three yeses and you build it around them. No yeses, and you learned it in a week. The book calls this a reversible step: "Most creative decisions are experiments."

C skip the description. Send the price and a call link.

Prove
STEP 06

Deliver, document, repeat.

Track each client's starting point and result. Ask for a testimonial at the moment of the win, not at the end.

YOUR ONE-PAGE OFFER

It's for: _____

Before, they feel: _____

After, they can: _____

How long: _____

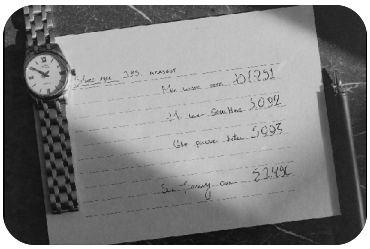

Included: _____

Not included: _____

The price: _____

How to start: _____

PRICE THE RESULT, NOT THE HOURS.

FROM THE BOOK
IRMA LION · CHAPTER 06

You cannot romanticize financial instability, and you should not have to choose between your creativity and your security forever.

Five steps. Two core. A price is a position. It tells people who you are for before they read a word.

Anchor	STEP 07	Start from what the result is worth to them. CORE In money, time or standing, over a year. If ten new clients are worth $30,000 to them, $2,500 is an easy decision. Price at a fraction of the value, never by the hour.
Position	STEP 08	Compare yourself to the real alternative. Not other creators. The real alternative is doing it alone for another year, hiring an agency, or staying where they are. Say that plainly in your offer.
Levels	STEP 09	Offer three levels of one promise. Guided, done with you, done for you. Same result, more of you at each level. Most people choose the middle. The top makes it look reasonable.
Say it	STEP 10	State the price, then stop talking. CORE The hardest part of pricing isn't the math. It's being seen holding a number. Irma treats fear as something to work with, not wait out, and sets the standard: "Charge fairly without making the work less meaningful." Practice your price out loud ten times. No apology, no discount on the first call. The silence after the number is part of the sale. F your fans will pay more than you expect. Don't price for strangers.
Raise	STEP 11	Raise it on a schedule. When your spots fill, or after a few clients with strong results, raise the price for the next person. New clients only.

THE LADDER · BUILD THE TOP RUNG FIRST

FREE	ENTRY · $27–$97	CORE · $500–$5K	HIGH TOUCH · $2.5K–$25K	CONTINUITY
ATTRACT	TRY	LEARN	TRANSFORM	STAY
A guide like this one, a live class.	A workshop or template.	A course or group program.	Done with you, or done for you.	A membership or retainer.

Illustrative ranges. One free door and one high-touch offer are enough to start. Your positioning line: I help [who] get [result] without [what they dread], through [your method].

FIVE MOVES FROM A POST TO A PAYMENT.

FROM THE BOOK
IRMA LION · CHAPTER 10

Eventually, I understood that most silence is not a verdict. … I stopped counting how many people ignored me. I began paying attention to what I could build with the few who said yes.

When Irma was building her first studio in Kansas City, she messaged thousands of strangers asking them to create with her. Most never replied. The few who did became her start. Selling works the same way. Most audiences don't refuse to buy. They just never find the next step.

FOLLOW	RAISE A HAND	BOOK A CALL	SAY YES	REVENUE
25,000	500 2%	50 10%	10 20%	$25K
See your work and trust you more each week.	Comment a keyword or reply to a Story.	A real conversation, then a call.	Choose to work with you.	Ten clients at $2,500.

Example: an audience of 25,000. Illustrative rates, not a promise. Your numbers will differ. The shape won't: every stage only has to work a little.

Content
STEP 12

Post about the problem your offer solves.

Two posts a week that name the problem, show a result, or answer a question from your Lesson 1 list. Write them with the FRAME Story Method from Private Preview 01, and end each with a keyword invitation.

Comment
STEP 13

Turn every comment into a conversation. CORE

"Comment PLAN and I'll send it to you." An automated DM tool can reply in seconds with the free resource and one question. A follower who comments is a person you can talk to.

W this is your main move for the first two weeks.

Conversation
STEP 14

Ask before you offer.

Three questions, using the script below. If their answers match your offer, invite them to a call. If not, help them anyway.

Call
STEP 15

Thirty minutes, five questions. CORE

Where are you now? Where do you want to be? What's in the way? What have you tried? Then: here is how I'd help, and here is the investment. Keep the call about them until the last five minutes.

Follow up
STEP 16

Within twenty-four hours, every time.

Most sales are lost to silence, not to a no. And silence is not a verdict. Send a short recap, the link to pay, and one date to decide by.

THE DM SCRIPT

ONE	"Here it is. Quick question: what made you comment on this one?"
TWO	"Got it. Where are you with that right now, and where do you want to be?"
THREE	"Would it help to talk it through for twenty minutes? I'll tell you honestly if I can help."

THIRTY DAYS TO YOUR FIRST PAID CLIENT.

One focus a week. Do them in order. The order is the strategy.

WEEK 1

Listen.

→ Copy 30 days of questions
→ Count your demand
→ Write your transformation line

WEEK 2

Pre-sell.

→ Message the 5 to 10 who asked
→ Set your three levels
→ Say the price out loud

WEEK 3

Open the door.

→ Set up comment-to-DM
→ Two problem posts
→ Run the DM script daily

WEEK 4

Close.

→ Take the calls
→ Follow up within 24 hours
→ Ask for the first testimonial

THE WEEKLY PAUSE
FROM THE BOOK

Every Friday, ten minutes. Irma ends each week with three decisions: one thing to keep, one thing to change, one thing to create next. Then fill in five numbers.

THE TRACKER · FIVE NUMBERS, FIVE MINUTES EVERY FRIDAY

	WEEK 1	WEEK 2	WEEK 3	WEEK 4
Hands raised (keywords, replies)
Real conversations in DMs
Calls booked
Clients
Revenue

What good looks like by day thirty: conversations every day, a few calls a week, and your first client paid. Ten clients is a quarter's work, not a month's.

IF IT IS NOT WORKING

WHAT HAPPENED	WHAT TO CHANGE NEXT WEEK
Views, but no hands raised	Your free resource is too general. Make it solve one small, urgent problem.
Hands raised, but no calls	You're pitching too early or not at all. Use the three-question script first.
Calls, but no yeses	Wrong person or vague result. Go back to Step 02 and narrow both.
Yeses, but not enough revenue	The price is the problem, not the demand. Add the done-for-you level and raise the middle.
You're avoiding the asks	That's resistance, not strategy. Irma: "Courage is not a feeling you wait for. It is the relationship you build with uncertainty through action." Send one message today.

MEET THE HOUSE

ONE HOUSE. THREE FOUNDERS.

ID House Inc. is a luxury brand agency for founders and experts. Strategy, image and revenue, built as one system around you, by the three people who run it.

IF YOU WANT THE WHOLE SYSTEM BUILT

SUPPORT ISN'T A SHORTCUT. IT'S AN AMPLIFIER.

You can run this preview yourself, and you should. But if you'd rather spend your time serving clients than building offers, writing scripts and chasing follow-ups, that's exactly what we build.

FROM THE BOOK
IRMA LION · CHAPTER 15

When you hire the right people … you aren't buying their talent because you lack your own. You're buying clarity. You're buying time. You're buying momentum.

At ID House, Income is one of four pillars. It works because the other three are built with it: the identity, the image and the presence that make people ready to buy before they ever reach your messages.

THE LADDER

OFFERS AND PRICING

Researched, named and priced so every buyer has an obvious next step.
